2023F Thermal power: Keep our fingers crossed

La Nina was beneficial to hydropower in Sep and Oct 2022

- Per EVN, total electricity production in Sep and Oct was 22.6bn kWh (+17% yoy) and 21.9bn kWh (+8% yoy), respectively. Overall, the 10M22 aggregate output volume went up 6% yoy to 226bn kWh.
- In Sep and Oct 2022, hydropower output surged to 19.2bn kWh (+17% yoy) thanks to La Nina effect.
- Coal-fired power volume dropped to 14.9bn kWh (-6% yoy) owing to surging global coal price (+105% yoy) causing tight coal supply in Sep and Oct. According to Vinacomin, in 1H22, the mixed coal price supplied to domestic power plants had increased 30-35% yoy.
- Gas-fired power output increased to 4.2bn kWh (+41% yoy) in Sep and Oct from the tepid base in 3Q21. Despite the sharp hike in 6M22 (+60% yoy), Singapore fuel oil (FO) price (the reference for gas supplied to domestic gas-fired power plants) gradually cooled down since 3Q22 when it was down 32% compared to 6M22.
- Average competitive market price (CGM) remained at a high level, VND1,770/kWh (+86% yoy, +17% mom) in Sep 2022.

Thermal power is expected to shine in 2023F

- Newcastle coal price slowed down its rising trend when it averaged USD391/tonne in Oct, 2022 (-11% mom). However, we predict the coal price will remain at high level due to coal shortage after EU imposed sanction on Russian coal imports, which pushed global coal prices up.
- The EIA has slashed its 2023F world oil demand growth forecast by 320,000 barrels per day, to 1.16mn bpd and OPEC+ announced the cut of 2mn barrels per day (bpd) of output equal to 2% of global supply. Thus, we estimate the price of a Brent barrel for next year is an average of USD88, down from an average of USD95 across 4Q22F which was lower than 9M22's average price.
- The decelerating gas input prices are expected to narrow the price gap between gas thermal and coal-fired power.
- We expect the average CGM price will remain high in the following months and reach VND1,440/kWh (+44% yoy) in 2022 in the context of hovering material prices and recovering power demand.
- As La Nina is expected to wane since early 2023F, the water level in hydropower reservoirs is projected to drop in 2023F. As a result, we believe that EVN will mobilize thermal power as the alternative for shrinking hydropower output in 2023F.
